

Middle East and North Africa Studies Program presents

Islam, Feminism, and the Women's Mosque Movement

This symposium brings together scholars from multidisciplinary perspectives to explore the histories and contemporary debates on the themes of Islamic feminism and their application in the areas of law, democracy, globalization, and writing. Case studies of the women's mosque movement explores women's spiritual leadership and its role in the production and transmission of knowledge. The symposium highlights the contributions of Muslim women's activism and examines and challenges popular representations of women and Islam.

When:
Friday,
October 27th, 2017
9:00am - 5:00pm
Morning Session
9:00am - 12:30pm
Afternoon Session
2:00pm - 5:00pm

Where:
Gerlinger 302,
University of Oregon

Featuring: Kemi Balogun, Diane Baxter, Sarah Eltantawi, Fatuma Gedi, Azadeh Ghanizadeh, Ellen McLaney, Therese Saliba, Irum Shiekh and Amina Wadud

Sponsored by Rutherford Middle East Initiative & The Office of the President
Co-sponsored by: the Muslim Student Association, Division of Equity and Inclusion, Center for the Study of Women in Society, Clark Honors College, Anthropology, Ethnic Studies, History, Islamic Studies Initiative, Theater Arts, Religious Studies, Philosophy, Sociology, and Women and Gender Studies

The University of Oregon is an equal-opportunity, affirmative-action institution committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. This publication will be made available in accessible formats upon request. Accommodations for people with disabilities will be provided if requested in advance.