RIG Innovation Funding: up to $6,000 – Deadline: Monday, April 11, 2016, 5 p.m.

Guidelines
RIGs can request (individually or in collaboration with other RIGs) up to $6,000 on an annual basis. RIG coordinators and members should meet with CSWS staff during winter or spring term to discuss RIG activities of the past year, and plans for the future. RIGs seeking funding must submit:

a) A 2-page proposal that includes the following:
   i. A summary of the current year’s RIG activities
   ii. The objectives of the RIG (reading groups, conference, speaker series, edited/online volume, use of technology to improve communication, collaborative research, use of work-study or GTF time, etc.)
   iii. An explanation of how the funding will help advance our knowledge of women and gender, feminist research and theory, and/or related topics iv. A timeline of when and how the funds will be used.

b) A copy of their prior year annual RIG report, if the RIG has been in existence for more than a year.

c) 1-page budget with justification for each item.

CSWS Special Projects Funding: up to $5,000 – Deadline: Monday, April 11, 2016, 5 p.m.

Special project funding will provide seed money (up to $5,000) for projects with well-formulated, collaborative ideas and plans from affiliated faculty members, RIG members, or CSWS staff. Special projects will be those that have potential for either:

a) External funding (like Fembot or the CSWS Northwest Women Writers’ Symposium)

b) activities that will make them sustainable parts of CSWS (like the Women of Color Project or the Women Writers’ Symposium).

Guidelines
Affiliated faculty members, RIG members, or CSWS can request up to $5,000 on an annual basis. Those seeking Special Project Funding should meet with CSWS staff to discuss potential projects. After this meeting, those seeking funding will submit:

a) A 2-page proposal outlining the proposed project that addresses the following:
   i. How, specifically, does the special project have the potential to compete for external funding or how does it build CSWS?
   ii. How does the project further the mission of CSWS?

b) A letter of support for the project, either from the head of a department or a direct supervisor with knowledge of the project;

c) A project time line

d) 1-page budget with justification for each item.

e) A list of participants.

Deadline: Submitted by 5:00 p.m., April 11, 2016, 5 p.m.

Submissions should be sent to CSWS:
   By email: csws@uoregon.edu

   By campus mail: Center for the Study of Women in Society, Hendricks Hall
